Executive summary

Dr David Graham is a highly respected psychiatrist with a strong passion for social justice, trauma, and the mental health of veterans and first responders.

He brings extensive experience in psychiatric assessments for civil claims involving historical sexual abuse and medical negligence, as well as deep clinical expertise in trauma-focused care.

Dr Graham's journey to medicine followed a successful career in Defence, which included two deployments to Afghanistan. These experiences inspired his specialisation in psychiatry, with psychotherapy becoming the cornerstone of his practice.

In addition to his MBBS, Dr Graham holds advanced qualifications, including a Master of Psychiatric Medicine and a Doctor of Philosophy. He is currently pursuing further studies in health law with a Master of Health Law and holds an academic appointment at the University of Sydney.
